Description: Created non-representational sculptures for Club Medjulis in Saudi Arabia

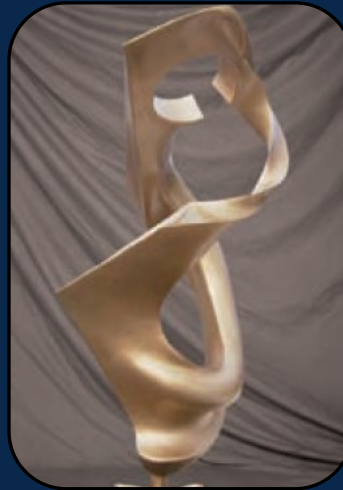

Project Details

Club Medjulis in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, Commissioned four 12-foot tall sculptures from Canadian artist, Don Frost. The project required an artist that was capable of undertaking a large task and finishing it in time for the club's grand opening. Frost chose Crescent Bronze because it can withstand Saudi Arabia's extreme environment, where temperatures can reach 60 degrees centigrade and sandstorms are common.

The sculptures are non representational shapes created as pure design. As classical music expresses its extremes to produce drams, these playful shapes follow the same format but in the physical world. The sculptures have been installed in an outdoor area to provide spectacular view for the dining area at Club Medjulis.

“The Crescent Bronze Company as a whole offers such a huge variation of finishing powders. With a slight degree of imagination, one could spend a lifetime with everything that they offer.”
